European Parliament calls for the EU to intensify efforts at all levels to tackle gender-based violence

The European Parliament’s initiative to make gender-based violence a major European priority and align with the most recent Declaration of the European Convention on Human Rights is a step in the right direction.

The resolution calls for the EU to intensify efforts at all levels to tackle gender-based violence, including: establishing a dedicated body under the External Action Agency led by a high-level political authority, including a Vice-President of the EU with specific responsibilities for gender equality; and assigning a dedicated budget.

The resolution also calls for the EU to undertake a coordinated action plan with the aim of preventing gender-based violence, including gender-based violence against women, men, girls, and boys, and to allocate resources for prevention and response activities. The resolution also calls for the EU to work with third countries to support the implementation of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW).
