Mahatma Gandhi had used the boycott mantra to great advantage against the British. Over 60 years after he passed away, the Dalits have set up in Gujarat’s Rampar, a shining example of how to fight back unitedly. In the village of Rampar, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT: Kala Chavda grinds flour at his mill, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.

By D.P. Bhattacharya
in Rampar village (Surendranagar)

Mahatma Gandhi had used the boycott mantra to great advantage against the British. Over 60 years after he passed away, the Dalits have set up in Gujarat’s Rampar, a shining example of how to fight back unitedly. In the village of Rampar, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT: Kala Chavda grinds flour at his mill, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.

By D.P. Bhattacharya
in Rampar village (Surendranagar)

Mahatma Gandhi had used the boycott mantra to great advantage against the British. Over 60 years after he passed away, the Dalits have set up in Gujarat’s Rampar, a shining example of how to fight back unitedly. In the village of Rampar, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT: Kala Chavda grinds flour at his mill, which the boycotted Dalits set up in Gujarat’s Rampar.