3. CEDAW<sup>15</sup>, CRC<sup>16</sup> and UNHCR urged Bangladesh to consider ratifying Refugee Conventions 1951 and 1967<sup>17</sup> and consider acceding to the 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness.<sup>18</sup>

6. CRC appreciated that Bangladesh has reviewed its reservations to articles 14.1 and 21 of the Convention, and urged it to accelerate this process.<sup>21</sup> UNICEF recommended accession to CRC-OP-IC and withdrawal of reservations to articles 14 (1) and 21 of CRC, as UNICEF considers that adoption does not contradict religious law.<sup>22</sup>

7. CEDAW welcomed Bangladesh's willingness to consider withdrawing its reservations to articles 2 and 16.1(c) of the Convention.<sup>23</sup>

8. UNESCO called on Bangladesh to ratify the 1960 Convention against Discrimination in Education.<sup>24</sup>

B. Constitutional and legislative framework

9. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to pursue its law review process with the view to harmonizing its domestic legislation with its obligations under the Convention within a clear time frame, and enhance its law reform through partnership and collaboration with religious leaders, lawyers and civil society organizations including women's non-governmental organizations.<sup>25</sup>

10. UNICEF noted that a draft Pornography Control Act has been approved by the Cabinet and is awaiting Parliamentary deliberation and enactment; it urged Bangladesh to expedite the enactment.<sup>26</sup>

11. CRC urged Bangladesh to define and incorporate the principle of best interests of the child into national legislation.<sup>27</sup>

12. CRC urged Bangladesh to incorporate the Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic legislation; revise the 1974 Children's Act<sup>28</sup> and define the child as any person below 18 years old.<sup>29</sup>

13. CRC urged Bangladesh to ensure the independence of the NHRC and provide it with resources and capacity to address child rights issues; establish the Children's Ombudsman to deal with complaints of violations of children's rights and to provide remedies for such violations; and ensure that complaints mechanisms are easily accessible and child-sensitive.<sup>32</sup>

15. UNICEF noted positive developments through the adoption of the 2011 National Child Development Policy, the 2010 National Child Labour Elimination Policy, the National Education Policy, and the establishment of the Child Rights Committee under the NHRC and recommended the revision of the draft law on the establishment of the Children's Ombudsman to provide independent and child-specific monitoring of the implementation of the CRC.<sup>34</sup>

16. The Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty noted that no progress has been made on the appointment of an Ombudsman in accordance with the Constitution.<sup>35</sup>

III. Implementation of international human rights obligations

A. Equality and non-discrimination

18. CEDAW remained concerned at discriminatory laws and provisions, including laws relating to marriage, divorce, nationality, guardianship and custodial rights that deny women equal rights with men. The Committee called on Bangladesh to pursue its law review process with the view to harmonizing its domestic legislation with its obligations under the Convention within a clear time frame.<sup>41</sup>

19. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to design and implement strategies to eliminate discriminatory stereotypes and practices.<sup>42</sup> The Independent Expert on water and sanitation called on Bangladesh to eliminate discriminatory attitudes and stereotypes concerning girls and women, which place the primary burden of collecting water on them and hinder their safe access to sanitation.<sup>43</sup>

20. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to extend in the Constitution and relevant legislations the application of the guarantees of equal rights between women and men to the private sphere.<sup>44</sup>

21. CEDAW was concerned that women and girls are discriminated against, especially with regard to access to education, employment, health care, housing and justice.<sup>45</sup>

22. Noting the adoption of the Sixth Five-Year Plan (SFYP), UNICEF stated that girls and particular groups of children, including refugee children, children with disabilities, children of ethnic and religious minorities, and children in slums and rural areas, continue to face discrimination and disparities. It recommended that Bangladesh conduct a national campaign and education on non-discrimination, and ensure full implementation of the SFYP.<sup>46</sup> CRC expressed similar concerns<sup>47</sup> and urged Bangladesh to address these issues.<sup>48</sup>

23. The Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty noted that the situation of the most vulnerable groups has not changed significantly since her visit in December 2009. She reiterated the need to actively tackle discrimination against those groups and ensure their access to services and adequate social protection, particularly the Rohingya refugees.<sup>49</sup>

B. Right to life, liberty and security of the person

24. UNICEF noted that the death penalty and life imprisonment without parole can be imposed on children aged between 16 and 18.<sup>50</sup> CRC urged Bangladesh not to impose life sentence for offences committed by persons under 18 years of age;<sup>51</sup> to halt the imposition of the death penalty on persons below 18 years and abolish the death penalty.<sup>52</sup>

25. CRC was concerned that prevention-based policies are lacking and that certain conditions in Bangladesh undermine the enjoyment of the right to life, survival and development of the child.<sup>53</sup>

26. In 2012, the Working Group on enforced or involuntary disappearances noted that it had transmitted to the Government allegations received according to which enforced disappearance is frequently used as a tool by the country's law-enforcement agencies, paramilitary and armed forces, mainly Rapid Action Battalion (RAB), to detain and even extrajudicially execute individuals.<sup>54</sup>

27. CRC was concerned about children being held in adult jails; their ill-treatment in police custody; the length of police detention and the absence of juvenile courts.<sup>55</sup> Noting that children are kept in prison with adults while awaiting trial,<sup>56</sup> UNICEF recommended that they be released without delay.<sup>57</sup>

28. CRC urged Bangladesh to limit the length of pretrial detention of children; separate children deprived of liberty from adults; review the decision of children's detention with a view to its withdrawal; promote alternative measures to detention and establish an independent body to monitor detention conditions.<sup>58</sup>

29. CEDAW remained concerned at violence against women and girls, including domestic violence, rape, acid throwing, dowry-related and fatwa-instigated violence.<sup>59</sup> CEDAW and UNHCR urged Bangladesh to adopt a national action plan and criminalize violence against women and girls; prosecute perpetrators; remove impediments faced by women in accessing justice; and adopt legislation on sexual harassment.<sup>60</sup>

30. UNICEF noted that despite steps taken to address sexual abuse and exploitation of children by enacting new laws, including the Prevention of Domestic Violence Act (2010) and the Anti-Human Trafficking Act (2012), sexual abuse and exploitation of children continues. UNICEF recommended that Bangladesh ensure full implementation of laws and strengthen efforts to arrest and prosecute perpetrators.<sup>61</sup> CRC urged that legislation to address sexual abuse and exploitation of children be strengthened, including through criminalization and prosecution; training be provided for law enforcement officials, social workers, judges and prosecutors on how to handle complaints with confidentiality<sup>62</sup> and support for child victims of abuse and neglect be strengthened in order to ensure them access to services for recovery, counselling and other forms of rehabilitation.<sup>63</sup>

31. UNICEF noted that the Constitution, Penal Code, Women and Children Repression Prevention Act, and Children Act prohibit corporal punishment in all settings. However, violence against children and the widespread practice of corporal punishment in families, communities, schools, care and juvenile justice institutions continues. UNICEF and CRC encouraged Bangladesh to enforce existing laws to prohibit and eliminate corporal punishment in schools.<sup>64</sup>

32. CEDAW requested adopting a comprehensive action plan to address trafficking and sexual exploitation and ensure its effective implementation.<sup>65</sup> CRC reiterated its concern over the rising number of children living or working in urban centres who are prime targets of organized child trafficking rings.<sup>66</sup> UNHCR welcomed the ongoing work on a new anti-trafficking law, however, noted that unregistered Rohingya women and children have not truly benefitted from the Prevention of Oppression Against Women and Children Act (2000, amended 2003).<sup>67</sup> The ILO Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations requested the Government to take necessary measures to strengthen law enforcement mechanisms in order to effectively investigate and prosecute cases of trafficking in persons, both for sexual and labour exploitation.<sup>68</sup>

33. CRC reiterated its recommendation to combat the sale and trafficking in children and urged Bangladesh to strengthen partnerships with all stakeholders so as to provide child victims with recovery and social reintegration services and programmes.<sup>69</sup>

34. CRC recommended that no child under the minimum age of conscription be enrolled in the army and that recruitment at the age of 16 and 17 be based on an informed decision and only occurs with prior consent of the parents or legal guardians.<sup>70</sup>

35. UNICEF noted that economic exploitation, including child labour, is prevalent in Bangladesh.<sup>71</sup> CRC was concerned at the high incidence of child workers in five selected worst forms of child labour, and the lack of mechanisms to enforce specific laws to protect child workers.<sup>72</sup> CRC and CEDAW were concerned that girls engaged as child domestic workers are more vulnerable to violence and exploitation than boys.<sup>73</sup>

C. Administration of justice, including impunity, and the rule of law

36. CEDAW remained concerned over the on-going application of illegal penalties rendered through shalish rulings to punish “anti-social and immoral behaviour”<sup>74</sup> and urged Bangladesh to ensure that shalish decisions do not lead to extrajudicial penalties.<sup>75</sup>

37. UNICEF noted positively the establishment of a juvenile court/ bench in all districts and national and municipal task forces to ensure that children are not sent to adult prisons and that those already held are released. The new draft Children Act, approved by the Cabinet in 2010 and awaiting Parliamentary deliberation and enactment, will ensure that deprivation of liberty is used as a measure of last resort. It also prohibits the death penalty and life imprisonment without parole.<sup>76</sup> CRC recommended that the juvenile justice system be brought into line with the Convention.<sup>77</sup> CRC and UNICEF were concerned that the legal age of criminal responsibility remains low at 9 years,<sup>78</sup> and urged that it be raised to at least 12.<sup>79</sup>

38. The special rapporteurs on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions and on the independence of judges and lawyers expressed concern about a death sentence passed by the Bangladesh International Crimes Tribunal, following a trial conducted in absentia, and noted that given the historic importance of these trials and the possible application of the death penalty, it is vitally important that all defendants before the Tribunal receive fair trials. Concern was also expressed regarding questions raised about the impartiality of the judges and prosecution services of the Tribunal, as well as their independence of the executive. The Bangladesh International Crimes Tribunal, established in March 2010, is in fact as a domestic court with the jurisdiction and competence to try and punish any person accused of committing atrocities, including genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity in Bangladesh, including during the country's 1971 liberation war.<sup>80</sup>

D. Right to privacy, marriage and family life

39. CEDAW remained concerned that the foreign spouse of a Bangladeshi woman could apply for citizenship after being a resident in the country for five years, whereas the residential requirement for a foreign woman married to a Bangladeshi man is two years only.<sup>81</sup> It urged the amendment of the citizenship legislation.<sup>82</sup> CRC recommended that children having one parent who is a Bangladeshi national be recognized as Bangladeshi nationals.

40. UNICEF was concerned at the falsification of identity documents in order to "legalize" early marriages or involve children in prostitution, which is a legal activity for adults in possession of a government certificate.<sup>83</sup> CRC recommended ensuring that every child has a valid birth certificate, as also highlighted by the independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation, and that children are protected from early and forced marriages.<sup>84</sup>

41. UNICEF noted that the minimum age for marriage for men and women is 21 and 18 years respectively, but although prohibited in law, child marriage continues.<sup>85</sup> CRC urged Bangladesh to prohibit early and forced marriages and traditional practices, including the dowry.<sup>86</sup> CEDAW urged Bangladesh to end child marriage which is practiced particularly in rural areas.<sup>87</sup>

42. CEDAW welcomed Bangladesh's readiness to regulate a uniform family code that eliminates discrimination between Muslims, Hindu, Christians and other religious groups, and to establish clear and non-discriminatory provisions on marriage, divorce, inheritance, distribution of property and child custody, in compliance with the Convention.<sup>88</sup>

43. UNICEF noted that there is currently no national policy on alternative care for children who are deprived of parental care, as adoption is viewed as contradictory to religious law.<sup>89</sup>

E. Freedom of religion or belief, expression, association and peaceful assembly, and right to participate in public and political life

44. Despite the adoption of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which provided for the increase in seats reserved for women from 30 to 45 and the appointment of six women ministers in 2009, CEDAW remained concerned about women's underrepresentation in public, political and professional life.<sup>90</sup> It urged Bangladesh to adopt laws and policies that promote women's participation in decision-making positions.<sup>91</sup>

45. The Special Rapporteur on human rights defenders remained concerned about the reported restrictions on the freedoms of opinion, expression and association, acts of violence, ill-treatment and intimidation compromising the physical and psychological integrity of human rights defenders in Bangladesh.<sup>92</sup> In 2011, the special rapporteurs on freedom of expression and on human rights defenders sent communications regarding allegations, among others, of threats and other acts of intimidation to a human rights organization and individuals because of their work, including cooperation with the United Nations system and an international human rights NGO.<sup>93</sup> UNESCO noted that self-regulatory mechanisms of the media exist in Bangladesh. The Director-General of

UNESCO condemned the killing of journalists Sagar Sarwar and Mehrun Runi in February 2012 and Jumal Uddin in June 2012. UNESCO stated that reporting in Bangladesh continues to pose a danger for journalists, due to the high instance of harassment and attacks against journalists and major news outlets. It encouraged Bangladesh to ensure that journalists can operate in a safe environment; prosecute cases of murder of journalists and attacks against media outlets; decriminalize the defamation law and subsequently incorporate it into the Civil Code.<sup>94</sup>

46. The ILO Committee of Experts called for measures to repeal or amend the Special Powers Act, under which penalties of imprisonment may be imposed on people who publish prejudicial reports or contravene orders for prior scrutiny and approval of certain publications or for the suspension or dissolution of certain associations. It noted that penalties of imprisonment may involve an obligation to perform prison labour.<sup>95</sup>

F. Right to work and to just and favourable conditions of work

47. The Independent Expert on extreme poverty recommended that Bangladesh ensure respect for labour standards and revise relevant legislation, including the 2006 Labour Act to ensure it complies with international human rights standards, adding that the Government should significantly strengthen the mechanisms that enforce labour standards and increase efforts to prevent and respond to child labour, especially in its worst forms.<sup>96</sup> CEDAW was concerned about discrimination against women in the labour market and regretted that the 2006 Labour Act does not cover workers in the informal sector, where a large population of women are employed. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to apply the principle of equal remuneration and equal opportunities at work.<sup>97</sup>

48. CRC urged Bangladesh to prohibit employment of children under 18 years in hazardous work and consider approving the National Child Labour Policy (2008).<sup>98</sup> UNICEF noted that while the national minimum age for employment is 14 years, for light work it is 12 years and for hazardous work 18 years. It recommended reviewing those ages in accordance with the internationally accepted standards.<sup>99</sup>

G. Right to social security and to an adequate standard of living

49. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation found that the separate treatment of economic and social issues in the Constitution reflected a misunderstanding that economic, social and cultural rights are not claimable and enforceable, with serious implications for the full enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights.<sup>100</sup>

50. The Independent Expert on extreme poverty noted widespread poverty and increased socioeconomic disparity despite improvements in economic and social indicators. Around 40 per cent of the population is still poor, at least 25 per cent of which live in extreme poverty, and the majority of the population living in poverty remains uncovered by any social assistance measures. Acknowledging Bangladesh's limited budget, the Expert noted with concern the decline in financing of social assistance programmes. She recommended adopting comprehensive long-term social protection strategy and increasing coordination among various stakeholders; taking all necessary measures to ensure that support to the poorest is a priority; and strengthening efforts to fight corruption.<sup>101</sup>

51. CEDAW was concerned that women are exposed to difficulties in accessing second generation micro-finance and have limited access to land and other property due to customary and traditional stereotypes.<sup>102</sup> It urged Bangladesh to implement gender-sensitive poverty reduction and development programmes, amend discriminatory laws limiting women's ownership,<sup>103</sup> establish legislative framework to protect women's rights of inheritance and ownership of land; and eliminate negative customs and traditional practices which affect enjoyment of women's right to property.<sup>104</sup>

52. CRC was concerned at child poverty and inequality and urged Bangladesh to implement the legislation and plans of action aimed at reducing child poverty and improving children's living standards.<sup>105</sup> CRC was concerned about the weak monitoring and accountability mechanisms for budgetary expenditure at different levels of the administration.<sup>106</sup>

53. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation indicated that water quality is a serious problem, and noted estimates that more than 1 million people are at risk of death from decades of exposure to arsenic.<sup>107</sup> The Expert on water and sanitation recommended undertaking nationwide water-quality testing in a systematic, regular and coordinated fashion, including testing for pollutants, in addition to arsenic; and implement plans to use alternative sources of water.<sup>108</sup>

H. Right to health

54. CRC was concerned about the growing inequity in access to health services and the dependence on donor funds for the procurement of vaccines. CRC was concerned that the public sector only provides 40 per cent of health services and that 85 per cent of birth deliveries happen at home in the absence of skilled birth attendants.<sup>109</sup> CRC urged Bangladesh to increase access to free primary health services.<sup>110</sup>

55. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to improve women's access to health-care facilities and services and to reduce maternal mortality rate.<sup>111</sup> CRC remained concerned at the high rate of neonatal mortality and child malnutrition.<sup>112</sup> The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation were troubled by the high infant mortality rate (43 infants per 1,000 live births) and that 51,200 children reportedly die annually as a result of diarrhoea which is frequently caused by lack of sanitation and safe drinking water.<sup>113</sup>

56. CRC urged Bangladesh to develop a comprehensive policy on issues affecting the rights of adolescents and to provide separate and appropriate sanitary facilities for adolescent girls and boys.<sup>114</sup>

57. CRC urged Bangladesh to strengthen preventive efforts by raising awareness of HIV/AIDS and the use of contraceptives, and to establish guidelines to address parent-to-child transmission, prenatal care, care during labour, breastfeeding and child care.<sup>115</sup>

58. CRC was concerned that drug abuse is growing and urged Bangladesh to prevent and end drug use among children.<sup>116</sup>

I. Right to education

59. UNESCO called on Bangladesh to enshrine the right to education in its Constitution.<sup>117</sup>

60. CRC urged Bangladesh to consider extending the length of compulsory schooling; raise the budget allocation for expansion of the educational system and improvement in the quality of education; address early childhood development; increase enrolment in primary schools; prevent school dropout; consider making multilingual education available for minority and indigenous children; increase the transition rate to secondary school; level out disparities in access to and quality of education and better equip schools with educational materials and adequate sanitation facilities.<sup>118</sup>

61. CEDAW urged Bangladesh to ensure de facto access by girls and women, especially those living in rural areas, to all levels and fields of education; retain girls in schools and provide a safe educational environment free from discrimination and violence.<sup>119</sup>

62. UNICEF appreciated the adoption of the National Education Policy, implementation of which is constrained by a lack of adequate resources, as less than 2.5 per cent of the country's GDP is spent on education. UNICEF appreciated the progress made in increasing enrolment; reducing dropout from primary level and achieving gender parity in primary and secondary levels. However, despite the increased coverage of the stipend programme, disparities exist in primary education completion.<sup>120</sup>

63. UNESCO called on Bangladesh to adopt measures to combat discrimination in education; protect minority groups; combat illiteracy and promote gender equality.<sup>121</sup>

64. UNICEF encouraged the Government to take appropriate measures to provide mother-tongue education to those children whose mother language is not Bangla.<sup>122</sup>

65. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation welcomed the increased enrolment of children in schools, but expressed concern at the high overall dropout rate, with official data indicating that almost half of children in primary school do not finish Grade 5. Poor children are more likely to drop out of school, and girls have a higher dropout rate once they reach adolescence.<sup>123</sup>

J. Cultural rights

66. UNESCO noted the lack of coherent policies in safeguarding and managing tangible and intangible cultural heritage.<sup>124</sup>

K. Persons with disabilities

67. UNICEF, noting developments, including the draft Persons with Disabilities Rights Act, encouraged the government to adopt effective measures that ensures education of children with disabilities.<sup>125</sup>

68. CRC was concerned that children with disabilities, in particular girls, experience discrimination and prejudicial treatment throughout their development.<sup>126</sup>

69. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation stated that people living in extreme poverty were more vulnerable to becoming disabled because of aggravating factors. They encouraged the Government to actively combat discrimination against persons with disabilities and progressively ensure their access to basic services.<sup>127</sup>

L. Minority groups and indigenous peoples

70. UNICEF noted that indigenous and minority children living in remote areas of Chittagong Hill Tracts and Char areas often lack access to basic and specialized services. UNICEF recommended that Bangladesh adopt specific measures to combat discrimination and inequity and ensure that basic and specialized services are available to indigenous and minority children.<sup>128</sup> CRC urged Bangladesh to ensure that minority and indigenous children are not discriminated against in the enjoyment of their right to access basic and specialized health services.<sup>129</sup>

71. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation were informed that Dalits suffer discrimination in all areas of life, including segregation in accessing housing. Most live beneath the poverty line; earn less than the minimum wage; have no access to education; suffer from numerous diseases; lack access to safe drinking water and sanitation and face discrimination in accessing public-health facilities.<sup>130</sup> The

Independent Expert on water and sanitation recommended that Bangladesh adopt an explicit policy to address the situation of Dalits; eliminate discrimination against them, and improve the situation of sweepers by ensuring protection of their health while at work and their access to safe drinking water and sanitation in homes.<sup>131</sup>

72. The independent experts noted that Urdu-speaking communities living in the slum in Mirpur, Dhaka, sometimes referred to as Biharis, live in very difficult conditions, with inadequate housing and poor access to sewage disposal and drainage – problems that are exacerbated during the flood season.<sup>132</sup> The independent experts welcomed the 2008 High Court decision that recognizes Urdu speakers as Bangladesh nationals, but were concerned about the lack of its full implementation. They urged the Government to design and implement a comprehensive programme to integrate Biharis into Bangladeshi society, including by ensuring that poverty-reduction programmes specifically address their situation.<sup>133</sup>

73. CRC was concerned about refugee children such as Biharis who have difficult or no access to services in Bangladesh.<sup>134</sup> While noting the 2008 High Court decision on Biharis, UNHCR highlighted administrative hurdles which prevent the Urdu-speaking community from fully benefiting from their rights and entitlements as citizens of Bangladesh, including access to passports.<sup>135</sup>

M. Migrants, refugees and asylum-seekers

74. UNHCR commended Bangladesh for hosting the Rohingyas, notably approximately 30,000 registered refugees.<sup>136</sup> UNICEF noted, however, that their movement is restricted, and that they have limited access to education and health services. Refugees outside the camps do not have access to refugee status determination and are subject to arrest and deportation. Children of refugees are not eligible for birth registration.<sup>137</sup> CRC recommended that Bangladesh address the concerns of approximately 100,000–200,000 Rohingya, including children, not registered as refugees in Bangladesh, and to provide them with, at a minimum, legal status, birth registration, security and access to education and health-care services.<sup>138</sup> UNHCR acknowledged a number of positive developments since the 1st UPR in 2009, but noted with concern Bangladesh's response to the Rakhine State crisis in June 2012 (which led to several thousand persons trying to flee Rakhine State) by closing its border and returning some 4,000 persons to its neighbouring country as of October 2012.<sup>139</sup> UNHCR maintained that the Government should ensure unhindered access to its territory by persons in need of international protection; fully comply with the principle of non-refoulement, take measures to prevent arbitrary and/or indefinite detention of unregistered Rohingya, particularly “released prisoners” who have already served their sentences.<sup>140</sup>

75. UNHCR recommended that Bangladesh draft and adopt refugee legislation.<sup>141</sup> CRC reiterated its recommendation to establish legislation and procedures to allow access to procedures determining refugee status to all refugee children and their families.<sup>142</sup>

76. UNHCR noted that there is no national legislation guiding prevention and reduction of statelessness or protection of stateless persons.<sup>143</sup>

77. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation noted that despite improvements in the conditions of the camps, registered refugees do not fully enjoy freedom of movement, the right to work or the right to education, which leaves them extremely vulnerable to abuse and exploitation.<sup>144</sup> The Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty called on Bangladesh to prioritize improving the situation of the Rohingya refugees; finalize its refugee policy and take measures to reinstate the resettlement programme, and encouraged the Government to seek out resettlement options that prioritize and protect the rights and interests of refugees.<sup>145</sup>

78. In 2010, the special rapporteurs on health, on migrants, on food and on racism sent a joint communication to the Government drawing attention to allegations received regarding the situation of unregistered Rohingya asylum seekers, refugees and migrants. According to reports received, some 220,000 unregistered Rohingyas were not permitted to receive official relief and were reportedly victims of violence and attempted deportation by both State and non-State actors.<sup>146</sup>

N. Right to development and environmental issues

79. In 2012, special procedures mandate holders on adequate housing, on extreme poverty, on food, on freedom of expression, on indigenous peoples, on freedom of peaceful assembly and of association, and on water and sanitation urged the Government to ensure that any policy concerning open-pit coal mining includes robust safeguards to protect human rights. They noted that the Phulbari coal mine was expected to cause massive disruptions and that if this open-pit mine is permitted, it could displace hundreds of thousands of people.<sup>147</sup>

80. The independent experts on extreme poverty and on water and sanitation noted that Bangladesh is considered the most vulnerable country in the world to tropical cyclones, and the sixth most vulnerable country to floods.<sup>148</sup> They called on the Government to continue to pay special attention to the effects of climate change on the poorest segments of society and to provide social protection measures to alleviate the impact on them.<sup>149</sup>
